

Burndown Chart

Explanation

The burndown chart for sprint 3 has remaining work going up as the main points were split into smaller tasks that were realistically completable by the end of the sprint. Most team members completed their tasks over the duration of the sprint with a final push towards the end of the sprint. Each story was split into 2-3 subtasks and all team members worked on those subtasks, asking for assistance from the team as needed, on a regular basis. Our planned velocity was the same compared to Sprint 2. Our velocity did not change because we were all able to successfully complete our tasks, and continuing like this we will be able to complete our project by the end of the semester.
